

Orchestra of Sound

The World Is Already Making Music. We simply help you hear it.

Tagline: An Orchestra Built from the World Around Us

Description:

An orchestra built from sounds, handmade instruments, and the music hidden in everyday life.

Short Synopsis:

What if the world itself became an orchestra? Orchestra of Sound is a unique musical project by Paul Snider that transforms ocean waves, whale calls, bridges, recycled objects, over a hundred sounds along with handmade instruments into immersive instrumental compositions that invite audiences to hear everyday sound in an entirely new way.

Long Synopsis:

Orchestra of Sound is a groundbreaking musical project by composer and instrument builder Paul Snider that transforms everyday sounds into extraordinary music. Using field recordings collected across Canada and internationally—including ocean waves, bridges, metal structures, wheat fields, and urban soundscapes—along with handmade instruments built from recycled materials, Snider creates immersive instrumental compositions that blur the line between soundscape and orchestra. Developed through years of experimentation, live performances, and travel, Orchestra of Sound invites audiences to hear the world differently, revealing the rhythm, melody, and beauty hidden within the sounds that surround us every day.